

MP4 Spatial Planning Workshop 20 – 21 June 2011, Emmen

Opportunities to integrate future place-keeping into spatial masterplans

Planning for place-keeping in partnership

(Work Package 2 in MP4)

- How do ‘place-making’ and ‘place-keeping’ activities fit together?
- Two key views emerging during MP4:
 1. ‘Place-keeping’ needs to be considered when ‘place-making’
 2. Wider involvement in ‘place-keeping’ needs to be addressed after trust has been built up during the ‘place-making’ process

Purpose of this session

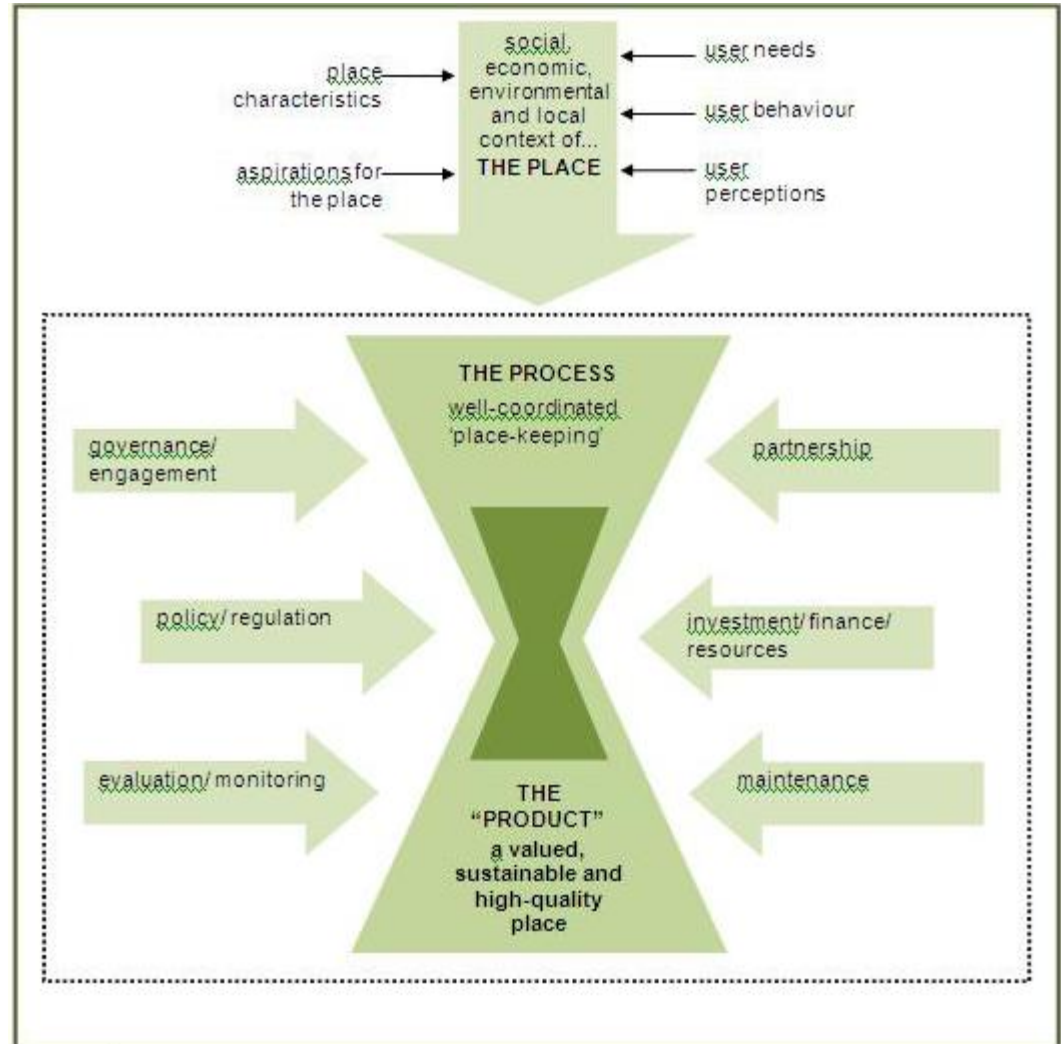

- To explore the scope for the inclusion of place-keeping in masterplans
- Key questions:
 1. How can place-keeping be considered in each step of the masterplanning process?
 2. How can trust between potential stakeholders, and thus wider involvement in place-keeping, be encouraged during the masterplanning process?

Output of this session

- Notes towards a brief report on place-keeping in masterplanning
- Commitment to produce this report as part of WP2

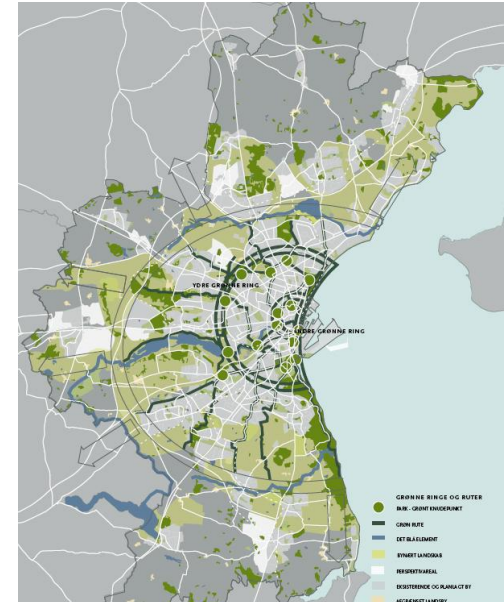

What does 'place-keeping' mean?

- The long-term management of places to ensure that the social, environmental and economic quality and benefits can be enjoyed by future generations.

What are we calling 'masterplanning'?

- 'Masterplanning' covers a wide range of spatial scales, from strategic city-level plans to particular sites
- But there are some basic steps that are common to all types of masterplanning

Steps in masterplanning according to CABE

- Prepare for the process
- Define the brief
- Design the masterplan
- Implement

Questions to address for each step in masterplanning

Questions	Preparation of process	Definition of brief	Design of masterplan	Masterplan implementation
How can place-keeping be considered ?
How can trust between potential stakeholders, and wider involvement in place-keeping, be encouraged?

Thank you

If you have any further thoughts on these questions after the workshop, please send these to Marcia Pereira – m.pereira@hw.ac.uk

Thank you!

Marcia Pereira

Marilyn Higgins

Heriot-Watt University